THE "BULL" CAMPAIGN.

TRIAL—ITS BASE.

THE RESULT OF A THREE-WEEKS'

The Spirit of Trade Throughout the Country Steadily Growing in Confidence—Harvest Anticipations.

New York, May 9.—The "bull" campaign has now had three weeks of trial. The result proves that it has been based upon a sound foundation, During the last four weeks we have exported about $19.00,000 of pold, which has to that extended the reserves of the banks; and this has been not only a severe but also a more or less unexpected test of the strength of the stock market. Under an ordinary state of things, such a drain would have sufficed to cause important selling of long stocks and a big decline in prices; but, in the present condition of things, whilst it has encouraged active selling by the "bear" operators, it has not prevented a material rise in prices and has simply acted as a preventive of a still further advance. It is another evidence of the intrinsic strongth of the market that not only has the upward movement had little or no support from the London and continental markets, but it has actually had to contend with the return of securities from those sources.

These facts show incontestably that the securities from those sources.

These facts show incontestably that the success of the "bull" campaign, thus far, is due to a bona fide recovery of confidence and to solid causes. At the same time, however, the larger operators are wise in their disposition to postpone any extreme urging of the rise until the uncertainties attending the money market are miligated. At present, the end of the export of specie is not in clear sight. The European money markets are kept unsettled by the still disturbed condition of South American inances and by the possibility that Russias expenditures for armanents and radiways, also preparations for conversion of a loan, may withdraw large deposits now resting at foreign centers; and Thursday's advance of the Bank of England rate of discount to 4 per cent is an expression of this uneasy feeling. A crisis at any of the European money centers might easily increase our shipments of gold and send nome American securities; and such a crisis is far from being beyond the range of possibility, there are, indeed, those who think such an event probable. Until the probabilities of such disturbances are dissipated, the present this attitude for the time being, that for does not warrant any unfavorable inforence as to the pesation of the market at a liner stage. A few weeks later, not only will the European demand for gold have been satisfied, but the situation arising from the results of the world's harvest, win necessitate a material relux of gold to this country. The recent coul wave has come too late to cause any appreciable in jury to either the winter or spring crops of wheat. The latest advises from the other leading wheat growing countries afford little improvement on the unfavorable prospects of their harvest; and we have, there fore, still are assuable promise of an extraor unary export of this cereal at much above average prices. This ulone is suite leading the interior demand for currancy during the full months. In the meantime, the resurves of the New York banks are not suffering any actual reduction, the will drawals of gold for export, since the beginning of A will, having been set off by the return of currancy from the interior may the exchanges with the substreasing Whilst, therefore, there may be reason for moderation in stock operations for the noment, there is home for apprehension as a the future; on the contrary, any favorabic turn in the European situation or in our foreign exchanges would be accepted as sufficient reason for the resumption of activity in the "bull" campaign.

The serious labor disturbances in Europe

some measure sympathized; but, on the other hand, this has been offset by the abatement of war gossip at the continental capitals. Here, "labor day," has passed with less agitation of the eight hours question and less display of the socialistic asitation than had been expected, which is a valuable contribution towards confidence and enterprise in business at large. The spirit of trade throughout the country is steadily gaining in confidence; and neither the labor market nor the capital market shows any lack of wholesome employment. Should the anticipated abundant harvest be realized, the resulting prosperity of the farming interest will tend to create a fall business of unusual activity, with a season of unusual carnings for the railroads.

Particulars of the Afray Dr. Colley in

Precarious Condition - The Negro

Hustled Off for Safety:

Special to the Gazette.

JUALY, Tex., May 12 — We learn the following particulars of the cutting of Dr. J. C. Coley by Bill Cheil, colored. There was some trouble between Dr. Colley and some parties, and the doctor was taying to get the matter settled. Bill Coeff, it seems, in terfered in some way and Dr. Colley ordered him off his premises, when the trouble began. The negrocursed the doctor and swore he would cut his heart out if the doctor "came on him." Dr. Colley had a steip of lathing mount four feet length his hand and went tewards. Bill, intending to have him leave the place. Bill made a linger at the doctor and cut a gach eight inches long in his bowlets to the help weight in the set.

provented further cutting.

The doctor was carried to his residence and three physicians summoned.

The negro was arrested, and as there was so much excelement in town the official took him to Milford, and as the train went down to Hillshoro they took him there, and from there to Waxahachie this morning to prevent a lynching. At this writing there is not little hope of the doctor's recovery.

They Assault and Beat a Cashier, Rob the Office, and Burn the Railroad Building.

Bristing 13. Ala., May 12.—A bilitional details of the robbery of Cashiar C. H. Russell and the barraing of the Georgia Pacific freight depot last night are as follows: Russell says be had left the wholew up and cone in an adjoining office to wash his hams; when he returned he forms the light our and four near, who demanded mancy. He refused and they knocked him down and assaulted him, breaking several ribs. The men robbed they knocked him down and assaulted him, breaking several ribs. The men robbed they knocked him altempted to the Russell to the safe to burn him up, but could not, no rope being handy. The building was destroyed, with a less of $20,000; insugance, $5,00. Three suspicious characters bearded the Louisville and Nashville northbound train soon after and got off at Biomat Springs, where they robbed and beat two drummers, and are supposed to be the same gang.
